OPA to War on Black Marketeers

'TOUGHEST PROGRAM YET,' PLAN

Porter Warns Chiselers; Larger Meat Inspection Staff Proposed.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Price Administrator Paul Porter announced today that he would soon put into effect "the toughest program yet" to prevent the black market from staging a comeback along with meat ceilings.

OPA's enforcement agents are getting help from the justice agriculture and treasury departments, Porter said in his weekly radio broadcast, and the policing plan will be unveiled in a few days.

"If anyone, with a misguided ambition for illegal profits, is planning a little chiseling on the side I'd like to advise against it," he declared.'

"From now on out the word will be—black marketeers, beware!"

* * *

To Hold Ceilings.

Porter predicted that some livestock producers would want to hold back meat animals from market in hopes of forcing higher prices. OPA will not yield to any "purely pressure drives," he asserted, and the ceilings will be held at "firm and equitable" levels.

Other officials reported that OPA's staff of meat inspectors is being increased well above its June 30 strength of 800 men.

More than a score of ceiling increases were ordered by OPA yesterday and OPA opened the door for further price increases on new automobiles, but not in a way likely to please automobile dealers.

* * *

Car Price Proposal.

Porter rejected a proposed general 3 per cent increase, designed to cover handling charges on new cars. Instead, Porter offered individual increases to any dealer who can show that he charged substantially more before the war, for "preparing and conditioning" automobiles, than he is getting now.

Each dealer must inspect his records for the last three months of 1940, figure the average handling charge for each make of car, and file an affidavit with his district OPA office. Then he may charge the prewar average.

* * *

Margarine Going Up.

The price agency announced that ceilings on margarine and shortenings would be 1 cent a pound higher than June 30 levels when fats and oils are placed under ceilings again Sept. 9.

The prices of cooking oil, salad oil, mayonnaise and salad dressing generally will be 1 cent higher than in June for each "consumer-size" package, OPA said. Lard prices will be announced soon, along with meat ceilings.

FAIR OPENS

First Exposition Since 1941 Brings Record Entries.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The gates swung open today on the Ohio State fair—the first since 1941—and record entries of the best from Buckeye farms, gardens and homes were on display.

"We're all set," said Manager Byran Sandles.

A $10,000,000 consignment of livestock was one of the outstanding attractions of the 7-day exposition, the show including 3,400 head of cattle, 3,600 swine and 3,500 sheep. Another $10,000,000 display was that of post-war farm machinery and household appliances.

Ex-Army Captain Killed, Priest Hurt

LATROBE, Pa.—(UP)— Edward J. Reardon, 41, former army captain of Cincinnati, was killed yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by John A. Miller, of Latrobe.

Police said Reardon was a passenger in a car driven by Rev. Daniel Gallagher, 55, of Lakewood, O. Father Gallagher had stopped his machine on the highway and Reardon was standing on the road when the Miller car rounded a curve and crashed into the parked vehicle.

Father Gallagher suffered a fractured leg.

More Flour and Brew Due Soon

City Welcomes Return of Lighter Bread as U. S. Lifts Restrictions.

White flour is coming back Sept. 1, and Mansfield millers and housewives are glad of it.

A lot of other Mansfielders are glad, too, for brewers and distillers will be permitted to increase their output of beer and whisky after Sept. 1. There will be 20 per cent more whisky and 21½ per cent more beer, press dispatches said.

Bread prices are expetced to be reduced one cent a loaf as more flour is made available, the OPA indicated.

Here's the way Mansfield housewives and a representative miller feel about the news.

"It's wonderful," said Mrs. J. R. Brubaker, 458 South Main street. "I found the dark flour all right for cookies and pies, but not so good for cakes I'll be glad to see the old standard brands back."

Mrs. W. S. Penrod, 191½ West Third street:

"I don't do much baking, but I will be glad to get white flour again."

* * *

Millers Reconvert.

Meanwhile the government's rescinding of the dark flour regulation presented another conversion problem for Mansfield millers

"Silk" sieves used in "bolting" the flour will have to be changed back to make the standard products again.

"Converting our machinery back for the production of our standard product will require about two days," H. W. Lantz, of the Lantz Milling company, explained.

"But we are glad to make the change and get back to turning out white flour, principally because that is what the average housewife wants."

Since March 1 millers have been required to convert 20 per cent of the wheat kernel into flour. Next month they may return to the normal 72 per cent extraction rate.

These eased restrictions were made possible, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said, by this year's record crops of wheat and corn and by action of the price decontrol board in reestablishing ceilings on meat animals. Meat ceilings are expected to prevent "excessive" feeding of grain, particularly wheat, to livestock.

GRAIN FIRMS

Market Responds to Report of Government Change.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Prices of grain futures firmed on the board of trade today in response to the overnight announcement by the department of agriculture of widespread changes in the government's grain program.

Buying came mainly from commission houses and oats advanced about a cent Gains in corn were restricted to fractions as demand in that market met resting orders to sell and some offerings by houses with eastern cash connections.

Brunet Mother Accused In Theft

DOVER, Eng.—(AP)—Mrs. Doris Blake, 25, an attractive brunet, mother of two, was held today on a charge of stealing the yacht Lalun in which, police said, she crossed to France with an escaped German prisoner of war, Alexander Todt.

Todt, son of the German engineer who built many of the Nazis' military defenses, was captured aboard the yacht Wednesday at Calais, France.

"We took the yacht," police quoted Mrs. Blake as saying. "We were going to send the money back."

MAKES ANOTHER TRY

SHANGHAI—(INS)—Gen. George C. Marshall conferred in the summer capital of China today with Chiang Kai-shek in a new try at solving the difficulties at the base of the Chinese civil hostilities. LINK FIRE DEATH TO BOBBY SOXER

Grandfather, 62, Accused of Slaying Wife for Love Of Teen-ager.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — (UP) — Dwight Owen Carman, 62, today was charged with the arson murder of his wife to clear the way for his tourist camp romance with a once-wed, 16-year-old bobby soxer.

District Attorney General J. Carlton Loser said an exchange of love letters bore evidence that Carman had become infatuated with pretty Bobbie Ann Keith, who is about the same age as some of Carman's 13 grandchildren.

Loser said Carman had kept night trysts with Bobbie at a nearby tourist camp where the petite blond moved two weeks ago after having lived in the Carman home for two months. He also revealed that she had accompanied Carman to Jacksonville, Fla., last November.

He charged the former Jacksonville Ice company worker set fire to his house "to take his wife's life because he was desperately in love with the young girl." Carman's wife, Melissa, 61, mother of their five children, perished Thursday when the Carman house was destroyed by flames.

Carman denied that he had anything to do with the fire.

Milk's Favorite Drink Of Healthiest Pair

By W. C. PETERSON

A pair of blond youngsters, who admit their favorite beverage is milk, are Richland county's healthiest 4-H club members. And they are sister and brother.

Leonard Wilson, who'll be 17 Aug. 29 and a senior in Shelby high school next month, captured the healthiest boy title at the closing yesterday of the Richland county fair

Donna, his 15-year-old sister, carried off the healthiest girl championship. She's a sophomore.

The modest youngsters, whose pink cheeks attest to healthful living, had little advice to offer other 4-H members who might aspire to the title of "the healthiest"

They live on an 80-acre farm on Shelby, R. D. 3, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wilson, and four brothers, Harvey, 14; Duane, 13; Miles 9, and Larry, 5, and an almost-ready-for-school sister, Martha Jane, 4

They're both presidents of their 4-H clubs. Leonard heads the Sunnyside Farmers 4-H club and Donna heads the Ideal Sewing club of Shelby. Each has been in 4-H work three years.

Sewing is a first "like" with Donna, although she confesses also to a liking to paint woodwork and such household furniture as may need re-doing. And she's an enthusiastic bicyclist.

But doing the dishes isn't among her favorite pastimes. "I'd rather wash them than dry them, though," she added.

Leonard spends many an hour at pencil drawing. He took an art course in high school last year and now finds pleasure in drawing, with one of his favorite subjects the interesting formations of clouds.

He Raises Pigs.

In 4-H club work, however, Leonard and his two oldest brothers have the raising of "market pigs" as their projects. The seven-

TURKEY ACCEPTS U. S. PROPOSAL

Rejects Soviet Request for Joint Dardanelles Defense Bases.

ANKARA —(INS)— Turkish news sources reported today that Turkey has accepted the American proposal for United Nations guarantee of the Dardanelles straits.

Turkey previously had disclosed its rejection of the Soviet request for joint defense bases on Turkish soil and limitation of control over the straits to the four Black Sea powers.

The Anatolian News Service said Turkey's reply to the Soviet proposals described them as "incompatible with the sovereignty of Turkey."

The Turkish note asserted the Ankara government would use all its forces to protect the Dardanelles against any future aggression, from whatever side it may come.

Youths Save Life Clinging to Boat

BALTIMORE —(INS)— Two youths who clung for 16 hours to an overturned sailboat in Chesapeake Bay were rescued today by the skipper of a fishing boat.

Capt. Jefferson Jackson found the boys, Herman Sanders, 19, and Larry Brandenberg, 18, during a wide search for the missing craft.

Both Sanders and Brandenberg were reported in good condition and "not much the worse for wear" after their long vigil in the bay.

'Willie' Gets 500,084th Fireman's Badge on Second Visit to Mansfield

Traveler Regrets He Has Never Been Able to Ride Rig to Fire.

By JOHN MINE

Willie carried his 500,084th fireman's badge to Massillon today as he continued a "trip" he started 23 years ago.

His ambition: to visit every fire department in the United States and collect as many badges as possible.

Willie Williams, 48, is a former San Francisco fireman. He started out in 1923 to tour the country's fire departments and still is at it. He visited Mansfield before, in 1934.

He says he's already visited 52,000 fire departments in 39 states. With only 29,000 more departments to go, Willie is looking forward to the day when he can just 'settle back in a chair and rest."

* * *

'Likes To Travel'

A cripple, his left arm was paralyzed in a childhood accident — Willie travels by train. He "bums" money from firemen; eats and sleeps in fire houses when he's not on the road. He wears an old firemen's uniform, well-covered with badges.

What's the purpose of this nation-wide "visiting fireman" routine? Well, it's hard to tell. Willie says he just "likes to travel."

As for the badge collection, well, that's just a "hobby," says Willie. "Other people collect stamps or coins. I collect badges, the hard way.

Willie showed his collection yesterday while he was on a return visit to Mansfield's Central fire station. He says he has 500,084 badges — counting the one

COUNTY TO GET $60,000 FOR VET HOUSING

That's Auditor's Estimate of Richland Share of 6-Million State Allocation.

County Auditor Norman Wolfe today estimated that Richland county would get $60,000 of the $6,000,000 voted yesterday by the Ohio legislature for veterans' housing projects

He said his estimate was based on news dispatches which reported that the big housing fund would be distributed on a county population basis.

The auditor said that he has received no official word from the state concerning the fund's distribution

Slash In Building Reported Likely

WASHINGTON — (UP)— Another slash of 30 per cent in commercial building so that more scare materials may go into housing for veterans was reported in the mill today.

News dispatches said yesterday that the fund will be distributed to county commissioners "on the basis of county population in relation to that of the state"

* * *

Use Outlined.

The money is to be used for "equipping and operating surplus war housing units supplied by the federal government," the press services reported.

Clerk of County Commissioners Philip Wolfe said today that the county commissioners have not yet discussed use of the money in Richland county for veterans' housing. He said it would proabbly be taken up Monday at the commissioners' regular meeting

Meanwhile, Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said today that he will investigate to determine whether the newly allocated money can be used to pay for the city's share of erecting 75 temporary apartments for veterans here.

Sites have been selected for the 75 apartments but construction has not yet started. Near Mifflin, 75 other government-allocated units, sponsored by the McVey post, American Legion, are nearing completion.

DEEP FREEZER TRAP OF DEATH FOR CHILDREN

Cleveland Child Beauty Winner and Brother Suffocated.

CLEVELAND —(AP)—Exploring the inside of a home food freezer, a bright-eyed boy of six and his sister, five-year-old winner of a recent beautiful child contest, found death.

Trapped in the freezer, as its lid fell shut, Michael and Karen Duddy, children of Mr. and Mrs. Regis Duddy, suffocated late yesterday while a housemaid frantically searched the neighborhood.

Left in the maid's care while their mother visited friends and their father was at work, the brother and sister—inseparable companions—became curious about the freezer stored temporarily in the garage until workmen could be found to install it in the basement The top of the unit had been propped upen to air it

When the father returned home and learned from the maid the two children were missing, he went straight to the garage. At once he noticed the lid of the freezer was shut

"It was odd to see it closed," he related, deeply shaken.

"I went to open it, not thinking to find anything, and they were inside."

Neighbors summoned police and a doctor who attempted to revive the children before an ambulance rushed them to a hospital There, two hours after they were found, physicians reported them dead.

Sheriff Faces Task to Keep State Fair Dry

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The task of stopping the sale of liquor by the glass at more than 100 places within two miles of the state fair faced Sheriff Jacob Sandusky today, and he called on the city and state for help

The sheriff was cast in the role of enforcing a 38-year-old law making dry a circle extending two miles in all directions from the fair neighborhood yesterday when Judge Dana Reynolds of common pleas court refused to grant a temporary restrainer sought against Sandusky by a group of Columbus permitholders.

The sheriff said he would ask Gov. Frank J Lausche to halt sales in state liquor stores within the two-mile radius, and sent a letter to Mayor James A Rhodes calling for Columbus police aid

ARMY'S TRIPS CALLED EFFORT TO INTIMIDATE

Flights Designed to Bolster Anti-Nationalists, Marshal Charges.

BELGRADE—(AP)—Marshal Tito, in a written reply to correspondents' questions, today accused United States military authorities of deliberate aerial reconnaissance of Yugoslav military installations along the Italian-Yugoslav frontier.

In the text of his replies to inquiries by newspapermen, Tito claimed that unauthorized flights over Yugoslav soil were carried out for the purpose of "reconnoitering those regions which our military units are occupying in zone 'B' and the rest of the frontier zone."

The question which the Yugoslav premier was answering was:

"Do you believe the infringement of Yugoslav frontiers to be deliberate, and, if so, for what purpose?"

* * *

'Not Accidental.'

Continuing his answer to that question, Tito said:

"Furthermore, the systematic flying over our territory in upper Slovenia by Allied transport and passenger planes has not been accidental erring from routes, or on account of weather, but intentional and arbitrary acts by Allied pilots who do not respect our sovereignty and who fly over our territory without permission in order to shorten the way, as they themselves state"

Tito accused American military authorities of attempting to intimidate his followers and encourage his erstwhile opponents.

"According to our profound conviction, flights over our territory by Allied military planes—bombers, fighters and various other types, even Flying Fortresses—have had as their purpose in the first place a demonstration and

'Twasn't Rejected, Just 'Set Aside'

BELGRADE — (AP) — Stories abroad that Marshall Tito had "rejected" the American ultimatum were believed here to have resulted from a mistranslation of the Yugoslav announcement

Authorities noted the Yugoslav announcement said the American ultimatum had been "set aside" as being now irrelevant and no longer applicable. "Set aside" was first translated as "rejected."

The Yugoslav government considered the ultimatum now irrelevant, it was explained, because Washington's demands had been fulfilled, in the Yugoslav view, before the ultimatum was issued.

HINT OF FALL

Mercury Drops to 46, But It's Due to Climb Tomorrow.

A hint of fall remained in the air today, but the weatherman said summer is due back by tomorrow afternoon and it should be an ideal weekend for outdoor activities

The mercury fell to 46 in Mansfield last night and to a chilly 40 at East Liverpool to equal previous low marks for this date. Cleveland's reading of 47 tied the mark set in 1890. Yesterday's high in Mansfield was 68

Skies will be partly cloudy this afternoon and tonight, but they are due to clear up by Sunday, the forecasters said.

Lonely Vet Wants Just Single Room

(In the hope Mansfield can find housing for some of the 300 veterans needing homes, the News-Journal is presenting daily one typical case.)

Clifford Currier went from school into the service He early met with misfortune, suffering a back injury, that kept him in hospitals most of his 22 months service.

Upon discharge, he elected to become a mortician. He is now an apprentice at the Jones Memorial funeral home.

Clifford's wife, a public school music teacher in Elyria, Ohio, longs to be with her husband, as he longs to have her here. Clifford says they'd be happy in a single room.

CHICKEN SALAD RING

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
(Associated Press Food Editor)

One of the best solutions to the one-hot-dish-in-a-summer-meal edict is to start with a hot soup and keep the rest of the meal entirely cold.

Here's a typical meal planned on that basis, and you can vary the tune in dozens of ways.

Dinner Menu.

Onion Soup
Chicken Salad Entree
Brown Bread with Cream Cheese
English Fruit Pudding

Onion Soup.

1 cup sliced onions
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 quart bouillon
Salt and pepper
½ inch slices French bread
Grated Parmesan cheese

Saute onions in butter or margarine in a heavy saucepan over low heat until lightly browned, stirring frequently. Add bouillon and simmer gently 15 minutes. Season to taste. Toast bread on one side. Spread grated cheese generously on the untoasted side, and place in a hot oven or under a hot broiler flame until cheese is lightly browned. Float bread rounds on soup. Serve plenty of grated cheese to sprinkle over all.

Chicken Salad Entree.

1 envelope plain unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
¾ cup boiling water
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated onion
¼ cup mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing
¾ cup diced cooked chicken
½ cup diced celery
2 tablespoons diced green pepper or minced parsley
1 large tomato cut in 6 wedges

Soften gelatine in cold water and dissolve in hot water. Add vinegar, lemon juice, salt and onion, stirring well. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken add mayonnaise or cooked dressing, mixing well. Add chicken, rice, celery and green pepper or parsley. Place tomato wedges in the bottom of a 3-cup mold or individual molds that have been rinsed in cold water. Pour salad mixture on top and chill 4 to 5 hours until set. Unmold on a bed of greens—watercress is particularly nice for this.

For that crunchy texture try sprinkling browned buttered bread crumbs over string beans. For a delicious touch, add chopped chives and parsley to diced buttered carrots. A few capers added to your drawn butter sauce for fish, mutton or lamb enhances the flavor.

Barclay On Bridge

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"UNNECESSARY" FINESSE

ONE OF THE prettiest of the simpler plays, seldom used by most players, but every once in a while by keener cardsmen, is what might be described as "the unnecessary" finesse. The purpose of the play is not to win a trick in the finesse itself. It is to cause a trick to be won in the hand where the finesse is taken, instead of in the opposite hand. Reduced to simpler terms, it is for the purpose of creating an additional entry in the hand which needs it for one purpose or another.

West	North	East
	♠ 8 6 4 2 ♥ A J 5 ♦ A 7 3 ♣ J 8 5
♠ None ♥ Q 9 8 7 2 ♦ 10 9 6 5 ♣ A K 10 3	N W E S	♠ K 10 7 2 ♥ 10 6 3 ♦ 8 4 2 ♣ Q 9 7
	♠ A Q J 9 3 ♥ K 4 ♦ K Q J ♣ 6 4 2

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

East and West peeled off three club tricks before you could say "Jack Robinson." The kibitzer behind the East player was thinking silently, "This contract is as good as set, since South can't help losing another trick to that bunch of four trumps with two honors." But he had not reckoned adequately on the declarer's skill.

When East returned the diamond 8 to the fourth trick, South had already reckoned that his contract depended entirely on avoidance of a loser in the trump suit. So, to get in position for the earliest possible lead toward his own hand, he took the diamond with dummy's A. Then he finessed the spade J, and it won. But, whoa there! West discarded a heart.

Now, figured South, he would have to lead trumps through East twice more to pick up his trumps. But the only apparent entry in dummy was the heart A. A bit of study showed him a second entry—if West had the heart Q. Playing for that, he led the heart 4 and finessed the J. When it won, he finessed the spade 9. Then he led his heart K to be overtaken by the A and finessed the spade Q. His A dropped the now unguarded and the contract was brought home with one more spade and two diamonds.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Playing for a grand slam in a suit, if the declarer has two chances to get rid of his only possible losing card—a finesse or the setting up of some other suit on which to discard it—which should he usually attempt first?

Shoe Styles Originate In Herold Square

By BARBARA BUNDSCHU

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 — There's a fair chance the shoes you're wearing now originated in an inconspicuous office off New York's Herald Square in the busy fingers of a happy young couple celebrating the four month birthday of their first child.

Charles and Mabel Julianelli, modern originators of the one piece flat, the "naked" evening shoe, through-the-toe sandals, and the boot-like shoe, have been responsible for hundreds, sometimes thousands, of the shoe designs sold throughout the country each year since 1932.

As independent creators of shoe styles, their name is well known to customers of one nation-wide chain of specialty shops. Anonymously, they are responsible for the shoe designs of half a dozen large scale manufacturers of women's shoes.

A wooden foot—size 4B—is the hallmark of their trade. It sits on their desks and work tables in various states of dress and undress. Completed models are built on the arched replica; others carry a pencil sketch of a new shoe outline, perhaps a twist of leather or material tacked on to get the feel.

From the rough idea, a pattern is made for the custom shoemaker who is one of the eight employes in the tiny office. A single model is made up for the manufacturer who will make the shoe. They don't have soles or heels unless the shoe is a radical departure from shoemaking convention and needs trying on for proof.

Like all designers, they're hard put to tell you where the ideas come from, but Mrs. Julianelli does admit a season's shoe styles are based on what they're going to be worn with.

The new longer skirts, for instance, Mrs. Julianelli feels, will make thick platform soles look sillier than ever for street wear. The softer lines of women's suits call for lighter looking sports shoes than did man-tailored tweeds.

Generally speaking, the couple predict a return to closed toe and closed heel shoes, a transfer of trim interest from large bows to daintier flat treatments, a revived delight in carefully draped kid shoes. They ought to know, they dream 'em up.

The Julianellis went into the shoe business by way of art school—he was (and still is when he has the time) a painter, she a student of commercial art. They met in a shoe pattern factory in 1928; in 1932, still in their early twenties, they pooled their talents in the designing business.

New York Notes

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Dorothy Kilgallen is on vacation. Her guest columnist today is New York's popular air commentator and girl-about town, glamorous Maggi McNellis.)

So You Want To Be A Celebrity—Well, bub, you'd better know now that the celebrity is a very, very, strange and weird animal . . . He's a rare species of homo sapiens, being mostly nocturnal and thriving on good press notices, solid booking and applause . . . His habitat is from the Eastern Shor's of Toots way cross the Rockies to Ciro's and Romanoff's . . . He is usually protected by a large ten per cent antenna called the agent, who tells you that the celebrity does everything from 30 shows a day to giving his younger brother three-fourths of his salary . . . The species ranges in size from diminutive Sammy Renick to the corpulent Paul Whiteman . . . is allergic to flop plays, poor billing and large tabs . . . can be introvert or extrovert . . . and in most cases reacts to stimuli such as blondes, brunettes, increases in salary, and good liquor . . . To be a celebrity requires a certain fundamental and intricate training, the full rigors of which are here set forth . . . So get hep!

* * *

If you're a babe divine with a tantalizing torso, don't doll up with ermine, satin and mother of pearl . . . just fling on a sarong like Dottie Lamour or the latest bathing suit like Esther Williams . . . If to be a solid sending singer is your heart's desire, don't build up your chest and biceps . . . let 'em drop like Frankie's . . . and don't consult your tailor about the newest blue serge suit with the belt in the back . . . just don your oldest duds and, bingo, you are der Bingle.

* * *

Of course, if it's to the White House you aspire, just open up a haberdashery like Harry Truman and you'll make the right ties . . . If you desire to own a club terrif like the Stork and rake in the shekels like beloved Sherm Billingsley, don't worry about the "take" . . . give! . . . To be a painter of some renown, don't stray up to the Metropolitan and Frick to gape at Rembrandts, Van Dycks and Hals . . . rather hit the canvas like Mickey Walker . . . If its golf in which you want to excel and you're hitting the ball pell mell just drop your mashie, pick up a tennis racquet and pretty soon you'll be breaking 90 . . . ask Ellsworth Vines! . . . But if you want to be a tough guy and break the gals' hearts as well as their arms, don't consult Atlas . . . start hoofing like George Raft.

* * *

To be fabulously wealthy like Babs Hutton, don't think in figures astronomical . . . remember it's the nickels and dimes that count . . . If it's a princely title you covet, don't travel the seven seas to foreign shores . . . just get hep to the jive and you can be a Duke of Ellington or a Count of Basie . . . If it's your ambition to appear in every photogravure of the nation's leading tabloids, don't mingle with the Vanderbilts, Astors, and Morgans at the opening of the Met . . . just stand on your head like Richard Knight.

* * *

To be a screen comedian sublime and chase blondes for reels and reels of film, don't be articulate with the latest gags . . . says exactly nothing like Harpo Marx . . . If it's a screen lover like dreamcake Gregory Peck that you desire to be, don't practice your appeal on the gals in your neighborhood . . . get close to the theatre by taking the doorman's job at the Music Hall . . . But, bub, if it's most of all to be a columnist you're aching, just get Dorothy Kilgallen to go on a vacation.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

I HAVE always been a pushover for the humor of George S. Kaufman. Here are a few specimens of one of the sharpest and most telling wits of our times.

Kaufman and Max Gordon needed a girl with a powerful voice for a new musical, and the former journeyed up to Carnegie Hall to hear a highly touted newcomer. "How was she?" asked Gordon eagerly that evening.

"Terrific," said George. "She got such an ovation when she sang 'Ave Maria' that she encored with 'Ave Another Maria.' "

Watching Bill Rose play a hand of gin rummy, George disapproved of the strategy—too, too understandable if you've ever seen Billy play gin. When his opponent schneidered him, George asked him, "Exactly what game did you think you were playing, Billy?"

Rose, slightly nettled, answered, "I guess you'd call it only part gin." Kaufman added, "And part chesi."

"Age," Kaufman confesses, "has taught me patience in waiting for reviews of my new plays. Time was when I always sat up after an opening and waited for the morning papers. I would even sit up for the magazines, and once, I think, I sat up for Burns Mantle's Year Book. But nowadays I just go home and go to bed. You can be panned just as well in the morning."

Pearl Expert Has to Know Her Oysters

By ADELAIDE KERR
(AP Features Writer)

When Regina Kaback was a 15-year-old girl working for a New York expert on Oriental pearls, she used to bend over the lustrous gems by the hour, trying to learn to graduate and match them. It takes years to master that art. Sometimes, as Regina's aching young back bent over her exacting task, while other girls skipped in the sunshine, she used to cry out in despair, "I'll never learn!"

"Go get an ice cream soda," the boss would say, slipping a quarter into her hand. Later, her spirts lifted on strawberry foam, Regina would come back, twist the black loupe (glass) into her eye and bend over the pearls again.

In those days she worked with Oriental pearls (gems which develop naturally in oysters in Oriental waters). Today, in her own shop in midtown Manhattan, where she has assembled necklaces for some of America's smartest women, she specializes in cultured pearls (the gems whose culture is stimulated by inserting a small mother of pearl bead in the oyster, in beds near Japan and the South Sea Islands, and allowing it to remain two to seven years).

"Cultured pearls have cut the Oriental pearl business to pieces," Mme. Regina said. "Today famous strands of Oriental pearls are worth about ten percent of what they were 20 years ago.

"After all, the only difference between Oriental and cultured pearls is the beginning. Orientals begin naturally, when a grain of sand or a bit of coral gets into the oyster accidentally. But whatever the beginning may be, the oyster carries on in the same way from that point. The sand or bead sets up an irritation and the oyster tries to smooth it over by coating it with a secretion. Even after careful examination many experts are baffled as to whether a pearl is cultured or Oriental. But an x-ray can reveal what the pearl is founded on.

"I have assembled cultured pearl necklaces to match some of the most famous Oriental necklaces in this country. Sometimes they are worn instead of the original to save high insurance fees. Sometimes they are worn with it to make a double strand. One woman who has two Oriental necklaces, which cost about a million dollars, gave them to twin nieces to save a big inheritance tax. But before she did it she ordered two replicas from me and now nobody but the woman knows who has what."

Mrs. Kaback, now the wife of Arthur Rice Kaback, a Brooklyn physician, is a beautiful woman, with glowing dark eyes and dark hair, swept back softly from a serene face. She loves the gems she handles and has been guilty of hiding a few of her favorites for fear she would be tempted to sell them.

"A pearl has as definite an identity as a human being," she said. "A real expert, who has studied a pearl carefully, can pick it out of a whole mass of gems, if he meets it again. The color, the size and the birth-marks all go to make up that identity just as a person's hair and features do. But it took years of study and work before I could judge pearls with that exactitude."

Just to even matters, however, Mrs. Koback says lots of other things fool her.

"I can't tell people's ages," she says with a chuckle. "I can't tell whether a suit cost $25 or $250. I never do recognize sable when I see it—I can't even tell mink from muskrat."

BLOSSOM-END ROT OF TOMATO
CORN EARWORM TUNNELING INTO TOMATO
8-23

Guard Tomatoes Before Harvest

With tomatoes getting red and ripe, now is the time to guard them against a last minute invasion of enemies.

During the early stages of their growth in home gardens, tomatoes often are the prey of cutworms, flea beetles and stalk borers. At a later period they are subject to attacks by aphids and tomato pinworms. Now, just before harvesting, tomatoes should be protected from the corn earworm and blossom end rot.

Also, leaf blights which cause a yellowing and dying of the foliage may appear at any time during the next few weeks. When blight is noticed spray or dust with a fixed copper preparation.

Corn earworm, also called "fruit worm," is shown tunneling into a tomato in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Unless checked it will eat out the cavities of the ripening fruit.

Since insecticides are of questionable value in controlling corn earworm, sanitation is recommended. Collect and destroy infested tomatoes as soon as discovered.

Take steps also to guard tomatoes against attacks of what is known as blossom-end rot. This rot appears as a water-soaked area on the blossom-end of the tomatoes, as illustrated. The affected area later turns brown or black and shrivels.

Blossom-end rot is caused by breakdown of cells due to an uneven supply of water. To prevent this type of rot avoid planting tomatoes in dry locations. During dry spells water the plants regularly.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and make the old car last as long as possible.

It was expected that those markers at street intersections would require re-painting "sometime"—and that "sometime" was about a year ago.

It is said that sending a rocket to the moon has now become a "definite possibility"—which is still quite a distance from "probability."

Test of United Nations Efficacy

SLENDERNESS of the thread upon which world peace hangs is brought forcefully to attention by recent occurrences in Russia-dominated Yugoslavia, where two American transport planes were shot down by Yugoslav fighter planes—with loss of an undetermined number of lives.

Flights over this territory, it is asserted by Marshal Tito, are banned, but even so, it appears unreasonable that any such drastic action should be taken by a presumably "friendly" nation in peace-time.

Attitude of the state department, as expressed in a firm note to Yugoslavia, is that the attack was without "slightest justification," and that the matter was one that should properly come before the United Nations security council.

In view of the fact that seemingly smaller "incidents" than this have heretofore resulted in war, it seems advisable—if this is designed as a test case—to regard the United Nations as the supreme authority from the start, instead of attempting to handle it alone.

If the United Nations organization is to really function as an agency for the preservation of peace it is in such instances that its authority must be exercised. In expressing intent to pursue this course the United States has set an example to the world of open, public international dealings, and of belief that international conflicts should be put before the world organization for judgment.

But Her Name Wasn't Signed

IT IS REGRETTABLE that the girl who signed her letter, "A Common Teen-ager," had not read that all communications to a newspaper must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, else they cannot be used.

It is a good letter, stating the case of a girl who feels that she has been discriminated against in school because she didn't have the "high-class background," or the money to give parties, buy swell clothes, "and stuff like that."

She says, "I liked school and wanted to graduate, but I couldn't stand being classed as an outcast because I didn't have things like the others."

"I agree, there are some boys and girls who are hopeless," she says, "but us common kids aren't 'hopeless,' we just want to be treated fair."

"I wish you would print my letter and see how many others agree—or don't we have a right to have our reasons and opinions known?"

Yes, "Common Teen-ager," as you sign yourself, you have a perfect right to have your "reasons and opinions known," and if you will identify yourself, and consent to be quoted, one of our feature writers will find interesting material for an article stating your views—possibly with your picture—as was done with the article in last Sunday's paper by Teen-ager Nina Jean Stash, to which you made reference.

Aviation's New 'Port of Entry'

AVIATION is noted for doing strange things to the world, and one of the imminent changes will be made within a few weeks when Wold-Chamberlain Field, serving Minneapolis and St. Paul, will become the taking off point for travelers to Alaska and the Orient.

The polar route to the Far East, approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board for Northwest Airlines, will go from the Twin Cities to Edmonton, Alberta, and Anchorage, Alaska, then around to Tokyo and the Philippines. Another line will run from Seattle to Anchorage, to serve the northwest and connect with north and south coastal airlines. Time from Minneapolis to Tokyo will be 19 hours. The new route will cut 2,500 miles from the air route to Tokyo via Hawaii.

That part of the United States which lies midway between the coasts, which was known for its isolationist point of view before the war, suddenly will become an international port of entry. People who live there, far from the seaports of even their own country, will no longer be remote from the rest of the world. In their midst will land travelers from foreign lands, speaking in foreign languages of business problems in China and India, Korea and the East Indies.

Americans of the peaceful grain belt and the upper Mississippi river region are about to find global callers on their doorstep, and around-the-world trips will become everyday conversation.

Isle Royale To Be National Park

ISLE ROYALE and its surrounding little islands in Lake Superior is to be dedicated as a national park on August 27, and thus one more of the beautiful places of the United States will be preserved for future enjoyment.

This island, long famous among people of the Great Lakes area, still has the copper pits used 600 to 800 years ago. Its history follows a succession of Indians, fur traders, miners, lumbermen and fishermen.

Isle Royale still has no roads. Vacationers, attracted by the rugged beauty and the crisp climate, come by boat and travel by trail, once ashore. This is doubtless one reason why such animals as coyote, lynx, mink and beaver are still plentiful in the area.

The government steadily adds to its collection of fine parks, and thus assures the upkeep, the improvement and the permanence of many of America's beauty spots.

Couldn't 'Escape' From Himself

HERE IT IS AGAIN—only a slightly changed version of an old, old story. Twenty-eight years ago a 20-year-old boy escaped from the state reformatory here. Now, as a 48-year-old man, he has been recaptured and is to be brought back for completion of his term—with possibly some additional time tacked on for the escape episode.

"It has been on my mind," the man said when he was taken into custody and identified. "I want to clear it up."

All of which is respectfully referred to any other reformatory inmates who may have an escape bug in their bonnet—also to youths who have been toying with the idea of committing some offense against the law.

'One World' Ideal Encounters Many Difficulties From Start

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

ALTHOUGH the safety of their nationals abroad has always been a serious consideration of sovereign nations, the row between the United States and Yugoslavia seems to be more a symptom of larger ills than a definitive international incident.

Under other circumstances the situation might not have provoked such an official furore. There were urgency and tension in the air when the Japanese sank the Panay, too, but the resultant representations hardly attained the same pitch.

Odd as it has seemed there are careful observers who believe that the Russo-Turkish situation is as much or more of an issue in this case than the actual attacks on Americans.

They believe the United States is now beginning to accept the lines as drawn; that there really are TWO worlds instead of one; that we are finally out to stop any further infringement of one upon the other; that this is a time of testing, of seeing how far the eastern sphere is willing to pursue its own policies at the risk of a collision with the west.

They see the Yugoslavia incidents as providing a safer means for such tests than would be offered by a sign across the Bosporus saying "Halt!"

As these observers see it, Tito, acting as a front line "patrol" for Russia, has backed down rather than have an issue drawn between the Soviet and the United States which might have disrupted the United Nations council. It is taken as a sign that Russia is not yet ready to attempt more than can be done without an open break.

The probing is going on back and forth all along the line, as witness the new Russian-Yugoslav agitation over Danube shipping.

America keeps on trying to loosen Moscow's hold on northern Korea, and to fathom the Soviet aims regarding Manchuria and the Communists in North China. American interests are making a deep penetration into Afghanistan.

The British are moving to balance Russian pressures in the Middle East. There is a movement apparently designed to preserve Italy as a buffer and possible future ally.

The British, with their announcement of virtual "nationalization" of the Ruhr's industry at least for the time-being, seem to be countering a Russian move to re-establish eastern German war factories to produce for the Red army.

Where, some time ago, there appeared to be an attitude on the part of the western powers to wait and judge from events just how far Russia intended to go, it now appears that the attitude is one of "no more, regardless."

As for the actual attacks on American planes, it is obvious that Tito would never have gotten so tough except for the stern attitude toward off-course planes which is established Russian policy, demonstrated in the Vienna area and in the Far East.

Some observers have been talking about it as part of an innate "xenophobia"—a word which originally meant hatred of foreigners, but which has now come to mean also a fear of being spied upon.

Be that as it may, there is also no question that subtle propaganda is being carried on in Europe which is spreading fear of all American airplanes.

America has the atomic bomb, so the story goes, and no one can tell when she may decide to use it; the next war may start through a few innocent-looking planes.

There are, according to new Yugoslav textbooks, two great countries in the world, Yugoslavia and Russia, plus a fearful group of "foreign" nations.

Fear—fear and distrust—are the daily diet in the eastern European sphere. That such a diet always will lead to incidents such as those which now have occurred is axiomatic.

The spectacle of Yugoslavs cheering in the streets as their planes shoot down their Allies, who have done so much for them, certainly emphasizes the state of the world. But it is more important that the incidents have become transmission lines for far higher voltages generated elsewhere.

Farmer's Diary: "Off to the Junior Fair!"

ANTICIPATION is a stimulant that all the 4-H fathers and mothers of our valley get a dose of around fair time. For three weeks past our two older boys have groomed their registered lambs for the Junior Fair.

Our second boy is the one fondest of animals. It was his idea to give the lamb a bath, in the wash tub, with plenty of luke-warm water and liquid soap. He prepared the bath busily, wondering aloud what would happen should the wool "shrink" and become too small for its owner.

Under the apple tree in the back yard, he scrubbed and soaped and rinsed that animal until the little streams of water ran darkly off the belly and the wool looked very wet and very curly. The sun was hot, but lest the sheep get dirty again, he took one of his mother's kitchen towels and made a jacket for it. In this strange apparel, the lamb wandered about the pasture for two days, then got its forefeet caught in the strings, and scattered the cloth in shreds.

But the washed sheep was three shades whiter than the other, so the oldest boy was presently busy too, with soapy warm water followed by dunking the animal in the pond. Both sheep, having been previously wormed, were now ready for the veterinarian's inspection.

The local veterinarian came one evening after sundown, and filled out a businesslike paper, in each lad's name.

Two registered Corriedale lambs, breeding stock, were equipped for the fair.

This morning the projects were all to be ready at 7:30 for the stock truck that would haul pigs, calves, sheep and poultry from this locality to the Junior Fair. It was a rainy morning, but both lads were up at the first call, and had their chores done before breakfast. Since each would tend his own animal, and remain overnight at the fairgrounds, there was some excited collecting of blankets, and overnight apparel . . . parting admonitions, etc.

Here is entertainment and profitable observation. Here is opportunity to compare, to judge, to exchange young ideas. Those boys in those stalls with the stock are the boys who will have a keener knowledge of what good food, good care, and good breeding mean to animals—and men. They will be furnished the most recent charts and pamphlets on varied agricultural subjects.

Farm leadership for the future will come from just such groups as are making successful Ohio's Junior Fairs.

IT LOOKS like a war between Fiorello LaGuardia and Gen. Joseph McNarney any minute now. I hear LaGuardia has already sent an ultimatum of 48 hours to the U. S. army.

Everything looks disturbing. Maybe the best way out is to petition the delegates in Paris to declare a truce and cease peace-making before it's too late to avoid another war.

Ballplayers Reject Union.

The emphatic rejection—15 to 3—by the Pittsburgh Pirates of a scheme to get them into a CIO union is a healthy sign for the future of base ball. (Twelve eligibles were so little interested that they did not bother to vote; one voter was challenged.)

Unionization of base ball, if the unionized players followed the example of unionized industrial workers, would ruin the game. If the players, say, struck and refused to play because the peddlers in the stands were selling non-union pop, as did workers in a Detroit factory during the war, the customers whose dollars keep the show going, would soon disappear. —Detroit News.

OPA Plans Intensified Drive To Curb Black Market Operations

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE government, seeking the delicate ratio between wages and prices that makes for a balanced national economy, put back price ceilings on meat, cottonseed and soybeans while leaving dairy products and almost all grains free of control.

To help roll back meat prices to June 30 levels, government subsidies on livestock were restored. While milk, butter, cheese and ice cream were left in the open market, that decision was subject to change the moment prices soared beyond a reasonable level.

A partial return to the wartime price control system is a compromise between demands of trade unions and consumer groups for lower prices and demands of business and industrial organizations for free enterprise. Whether it will prove a brake against inflation without becoming a bottleneck to production is a vital question.

OPA plans a bigger enforcement staff and a concerted drive on black markets.

New OPA prices went into effect Friday, 48 hours after the Price Decontrol Board headed by Roy L. Thompson, New Orleans banker, announced its decision Tuesday night.

During the almost eight weeks since price controls expired, the decontrol board held up a ruler to prices of meat, grain, milk, soybeans and cottonseed (the latter two provide oils for margarine, mayonnaise, and shortening.) These five basic food commodities comprise more than 53 per cent of the average food basket.

Three-Sided Yardstick.

The board's yardstick, prescribed by congress, was that each item ordered back under OPA must have risen unreasonably in price, proved scarce and be subject to practicable, enforceable regulation in the public interest.

In the case of meat, the board found price increases since June 30 on livestock ranged from 20 to 50 per cent and on wholesale meat 35 to 80 per cent, with corresponding increases in retail prices.

The board predicted meat supplies would continue to be short of demand at reasonable prices. It said meat production was somewhat smaller than a year ago and pointed out that during the past few years consumer demand far exceeded normal supply.

Law Is Enforceable.

Despite past failure in enforcement, particularly during periods of short supply, the board said: "It appears that the government has at hand adequate techniques to enforce these regulations."

Control of cattle slaughter, the subsidy program and a contemplated larger OPA enforcement staff will aid in obtaining compliance, the board said.

Big grain crops made recontrol of that commodity unnecessary, the board said. Price trends were downward in anticipation of huge harvests.

Unfavorable Reaction.

The board's action, however, did not suit everyone. The American Meat Institute, spokesman for packers, said it would mean less meat for consumers.

The CIO which recently gave the Truman administration 30 days to roll back prices before it began a campaign for another round of pay raises, called the board's action "inadequate" and predicted it would mean greater inflation for the American people.

In Detroit the United Auto Workers, CIO, served a 60-day notice on the Chrysler Corporation that it intended to reopen the wage clause in its contract for 70,000 Chrysler workers.

Preserving Memories Of "Darby's Rangers."

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—This is the sequel to a grimly-bitter interview along the shell-swept and mortar-pocked road to Cisterna on Anzio beachhead Feb. 1, 1944.

It is a message to the surviving remnants of "Darby's Rangers," now scattered across the country, or to the relatives of the less lucky lads in that gallant legendary gang who fell all the way from Dieppe to Anzio.

It comes from James J. (Jim) Altieri. He's now a lieutenant stationed here, but once was an enlisted man. He served in both the First and Fourth Ranger battalions.

Last time I talked to Jim was on the aforementioned date and place. He and a buddy had cover of a casual kind in a crushed and shattered—building around which "incoming mail" shrieked and splattered so steadily that conversation had to be carried on in jerks.

It was a terse and tight-lipped talk at best. It concerned the 900 rangers of the First and Third battalions who had struck—true to the traditions of Bill Darby's boys—swiftly and silently through the night into Cisterna.

Only a bare half-dozen or so had returned. Cut off, surrounded and outnumbered at least 20 or 30 to one, fully half of the 900 fought until they died.

Wounded, out of ammunition and disheartened watching their captive comrades shot down as hostages, the other half finally surrendered—but not before German losses numbered five times their own.

Grim though it was, the story had to be told and it was tough getting the remaining rangers to talk. Silent hollow-eyed and heartbroken their commander—later killed and posthumously promoted to general—sat in his crushed command post.

Against his will, much-wounded Colonel Darby had not been permitted to lead his rangers into the last action.

It wasn't that Bill wouldn't talk. That day he couldn't. But Jim Altieri finally stopped his ceaseless cleaning of his carbine—over and over he was cleaning it—and told me what I had to know to write the story.

When he had finished clouds hung like a mourning veil over the sun's face and rain fell through the building's broken roof like tears and there was thunder from the heavens as well as from the guns.

But the rangers remained dry-eyed, hard-faced and silent.

"If you ever need a favor," I said to Jim, turning to go, "just let me know."

Racing back across that miserably open road I realized that the only favor Jim and the rest wanted then was one no man could grant.

Today it's different. Jim called me up at the hotel here. He's trying to locate all the surviving rangers of Darby's First, Third, and Fourth battalions—the boys of Dieppe, Algeria, Tunisia, Sicily, Salerno, Vanafro and Anzio—who haven't received their history of the ranger force.

He also wants to locate the next of kin of those who fell, if they haven't received their copy of "Darby's Rangers." They get it free. The printing cost is covered by the surviving rangers, who must pay for theirs.

To get the book those people can write Jim at 1418 Monroe street, Memphis, or to the Rangers' Book Committee, 1946 East Chelton avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. The name and battalion of the ranger concerned must be enclosed.

It isn't a commercial enterprise but merely an effort to preserve the memories of one of America's finest and most famous fighting forces.

It has countless pictures of groups and individuals, and records of innumerable names, dates, and battles.

That's Jim's message—except to add that he thinks the rangers they haven't been able to reach would like to have the book.

Daily Bible Thought

And which of you with taking thought can add to his stature one cubit?—St. Luke 12:25.

At Home

Too Much Is Too Much.

The War Assets Administration created last March to dispose of most of the government's surplus war properties, which cost 30 billion dollars originally, was about a third of the way through its job.

Rep. Roger Slaughter (D., Mo.) who was defeated by Enos Axtell, handpicked presidential candidate, was busy in Washington probing disposal of surplus war materials. WAA instituted an investigation of its own, house-cleaned 52 employes from its electronic division.

Slaughter, who 10 days ago cited for contempt Benjamin Franklin Fields, a figure in the Garsson munitions probe, for failing to answer questions of his house investigating committee, ranged down to Atlanta to ask the army why it was selling tons of radio equipment as junk.

He learned that radio transmitters, which cost $1,700 to construct, couldn't be sold now for $30. The market was glutted with so much surplus equipment that Macon and Atlanta junkmen had to call on other Southern scrap dealers to help them dispose of it.

* * *

Science vs. Civilization.

Just back from Bikini, Sen. Carl A. Hatch said last week that man had advanced scientifically to the point where war no longer was possible. Sen. Hatch is chairman of the president's special committee on evaluation of the atomic bomb. He said the A-bomb meant "abolition of war" or mankind's destruction.

Simultaneously an American scientist who helped develop the atomic bomb played a variation on the same theme. He is Dr. Harold C. Urey, Nobel prize winner (for discovery of heavy hydrogen in 1934) and professor of chemistry at the University of Chicago.

In an article written for Air Affairs, new quarterly magazine, Dr. Urey declared, that there was no military defense against the atom bomb and none was to be expected. He held it impossible to prevent others from discovering the bomb's secrets.

Abroad

Peace, It's Argumentative.

After wrangling three solid weeks over rules and fractional majorities necessary for recommending changes in the Big Four treaty drafts, the 21-nation peace conference at Paris finally began point-by-point consideration last week of treaties for five defeated Axis satellites: Italy, Romania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Finland.

Ironically, the first proposal for a treaty draft modification to come before a peace conference committee failed even to come to a vote. Italy sought revision of the preamble of the treaty drafted for her to give the Italian people credit for overthrow of Fascism, recognize the help they gave the Allies, and remove the stigma of unconditional surrender.

* * *

Key to Empire.

The British Labor cabinet has no intention, in the phrase of Winston Churchil, to preside over liquidation of the empire. That became clear last week when Britain indicated it would ask the United Nations for sole trusteeship over Palestine, renewing its League of Nations mandate which expired with the league.

Britain's now clear determination to stay in Palestine emphasized growing importane of the troubled Holy Land in the strategic Middle East, particularly if—by withdrawing from Egypt—Britain should lose its Alexandria naval base and access by land to the Suez Canal.

There were immediate indications that Britain's move would bring into the open a widespread diplomatic battle for control of Palestine.

"Britain will certainly not give up the mandate and has not ever considered doing so," said a well-qualified government source.

* * *

India's Crisis.

For decades, India's Moslem League and the predominantly Hindu Congress Party were united only in their opposition to almost two centuries of British rule. Since last spring when Britain made its offer of independence, a bitter chasm widened steadily between these two major political parties, already at odds because of differing religions.

Last week these religious-political differences resulted in a blood bath at Calcutta where more than 3,000 were killed in Moslem-Hindu rioting. British troops in tanks and armored cars fired repeatedly into mobs to disperse them.

Tension Is Absent.

There was no indication in Belgrade of any tension between Yugoslavia and the United States. Newspapers carried brief accounts of developments, but none spoke of the American note as an ultimatum.

A mass grave believed to contain the bodies of all five occupants of an American transport plane shot down by Yugoslav fighters last Monday will be opened by U. S. officials today to verify Tito's report that no one parachuted from the blazing C-47.

U. S. Ambassador Richard C. Patterson and other U. S. diplomats visited the scene of the crash yesterday and found reliable evidence that none of the American airmen managed to escape. Tito, in a note handed Patterson, described the incident as "a regrettable accident" but offered no apology.

Deadline Nears.

(The final hours, meanwhile, ticked away on a 48-hour U. S. ultimatum expiring sometime today.

(Exactly when the time runs out is not clear, but the document, demanding the immediate release of the occupants of two transports shot down over Yugoslavia this month, was delivered to Tito by Patterson some time between 2:30 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. Oh yes, about that milk that helped them to the healthiest titles.

"I drink plenty," Leonard confided, as Donna, wrinkling up her nose, added, "I drink some, but not as much as he does."

Both said they didn't care for candy, but of the vegetables grown on the Wilson farm they like plenty. Leonard says he drinks coffee occasionally, Donna ignores it.

This summer, Leonard has been working for the city light and water plant at Plymouth. Ordinarily, however, he helps his dad with the chores about the farm. He and his three older brothers milk six cows but, when it comes to drinking the milk in a stream from bossie's spigots, Leonard passes.

"I like my milk good and cold," he said. "It's all right warm but not as good."

ARABS WON'T EAT

LONDON—(INS)—A Reuter dispatch from Acre, North Palestine, reported today that 400 Arab prisoners at Acre declared a 24-hour hunger strike in sympathy with 14 Arab political offenders who began a "fast until release or death" three days ago. These political prisoners had been held since 1936-37 on charges of joining in on Arab disturbances at that time.

MR. TOAD GIVES WARNING

A warning should be promptly heeded;
A second never should be needed.
—Old Mr. Toad.

"I wouldn't if I were you," said Old Mr. Toad.

Little Wobblenose, Peter Rabbit's latest grandson, was in mischief and didn't know it. Chucky, the newest grandson of Johnny Chuck, was in mischief and didn't know it. They were in the same kind of mischief but in different places in Farmer Brown's garden. The little Rabbit, after nibbling at several heads of lettuce, had settled down to eating into the prize head of all. He couldn't possibly eat all of it at one time. It was too big for that. He was just spoiling it for any one else. The young Chuck had found that the tender young bean leaves, not long through the ground, were the most delicious food he ever had tasted. The more he ate the more he wanted.

In so far as these two innocents knew, that was no reason in the world why they shouldn't eat all they wanted of these things that tasted so good, absolutely none. Ever since they were big enough to eat green food they had been free to eat clover grass and other plants to their liking wherever found. To them these green things in the garden were different in taste only. They were just food, delicious food, free to all.

Behind Chucky stood a row of short, bare stems from which he had eaten the leaves. He was reaching for another when Old Mr. Toad hopped out from beneath that plant. Chucky was startled. He had never before seen Old Mr. Toad, never heard of him. What a homely fellow! But he wasn't big enough to be afraid of. Chucky was glad of that because he didn't want to be interfered with. Once more he reached for that leaf.

"I wouldn't if I were you," said Old Mr. Toad.

Chucky paused and stared at Old Mr. Toad. "You wouldn't what?" he asked.

"I wouldn't take that leaf. I wouldn't take any more leaves around here," said Mr. Toad.

Chucky's eyes opened very wide with surprise. "Why not?" he asked.

Old Mr. Toad didn't answer that. "If I were you I would go away from here and not come back," said he as gravely as before.

"Why?" cried Chucky, looking as if he wasn't quite sure that he had heard right.

"Yes, why?" cried Little Wobblenose, who had eaten his fill of the prize head of lettuce and had come to see what the young Chuck was doing.

"Because if you stay here you are bound to get in trouble. Yes, sir, you are bound to get in trouble, great trouble," replied Old Mr. Toad.

"What kind of trouble?" the young Chuck wanted to know.

"Did you hear that Dog barking over here a little while ago?" asked Old Mr. Toad.

"We heard a big noise," admitted Chucky.

"That was the barking of that dog. He comes here often. If he should find you here he would chase you and catch you and shake you to death. Yes, sir, that's what he would do," replied Old Mr. Toad.

"What would he do that for?" asked Little Wobblenose.

"Don't ask me," said Old Mr. Toad. "Dogs are that way I guess. They seem to think it is fun to chase other folks."

"If he is so dangerous why didn't he shake you to death?" asked Chucky shrewdly.

Old Mr. Toad chuckled. "He tried it once a long time ago. He's never tried it since. He never will again. I have a way with Dogs and some other folks," said he. His golden eyes twinkled.

"Is he the only reason we should keep away from all these good things?" asked Little Wobblenose.

"Have you ever seen these two-legged creatures called Men?" asked Old Mr. Toad.

"No," replied the two together.

"Well, they are the biggest reason why you better not come here again. You'll find out about them later. So go away and stay away. You'll be sorry if you don't," said Old Mr. Toad.

'Willie' Visits City Firemen

Mansfield Fireman John Guthrie unpinned from his shirt and dropped into Willie's four-wheeled collection box.

But Willie scooped up a handful of badges from his half-filled "converted" baby-buggy. From Omaha, Palm Beach. 500,084, he says.

He let them fall back into the buggy with a satisfied grin on his weather-beaten face.

* * *

Buggy Painted Red.

The buggy, itself, is quite a contraption. Willie says he used to carry his collection around in a box. Some eight months ago sailors at Portsmouth, Va., navy yard built him the "rolling" box.

It's now painted red, has its own "fire bell." Its front end is jam-packed with reflectors for those between-train jaunts.

"Just so cars don't run me down at night," he explains.

Willie used to be an alarm boy in a Frisco fire house. Because of his injury he was never able to "ride a rig" to a fire. In 1923 he "quit" and hit the road.

Besides the badges, Willie also has "thousands" of fire buttons from firemen's uniforms and "hundreds" of pictures of fire houses, fire trucks and, of course, fires.

His other prized possession is a scrapbook he started to keep recently. It contains news clippings and pictures about Willie.

The scrap book? Well, it's an old 1910 fire call register from Oshkosh, Wis.

Dodgers-Cards Series May Decide National Pennant

SPORTS ROUND UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— With the National league's record of close pennant races, it isn't hard to find a parallel for the current situation, when everything appears to hinge on the outcome of the current Brooklyn road trip. . . . If the Dodgers, who go into St. Louis for a crucial series tomorrow, can stagger through that and the rest of their tour, they stand a good chance of winning the pennant at home—on spirit if not on ability. . . . The situation was reversed in 1942, when the Dodgers lost most of their ten-game lead during an August trip into the west and the Cards then finished the job by winning an important series at Ebbets Field. . . . And in 1937 the Cubs lost out to the Giants on the final Eastern tour. . . . Three years before that, the Cards, far behind in August, took eleven out of 15 games on a September eastern tour to win the flag. Or you can go back to 1921 when the Giants won out with a successful September western trip, mostly at Pittsburgh's expense.

FEELING NO PAIN

Frank (Buck) O'Neil, the silent man of the harness racing business, relates this one about the time trainer Tom Berry was tossed out of his sulky during the Goshen races. . . . As a rescuer came over the rail to help him, Tom moaned: "I'm bleeding internally." . . . Properly impressed, the man shouted for an ambulance. . . . "No, not an ambulance," Berry protested. "I'm bleeding internally. I bet $200 on the horse."

JUST ANOTHER FELLER

Like Bob Feller, who has been working overtime lately, Earl Evans of Nanty Glo, Pa., 125-pound relief pitcher for the Jamestown, N. Y. Pony league club, had a busy session last week. Earl went in twice in three days to pitch brief relief stints and get credit for victories. Two days later he took over against Wellsville with the bases full and the score tied in a late inning and retired the side. In the next frame Evans, who had been at bat nine times and fanned eight, came up with the corners crammed and lashed out a single to win his third game in five days.

M'Kinley Hurls Two-Hitter

Running up a four run lead in the initial frame, Humphryes Manufacturing went on to hang up a 7 to 1 victory over Harrington Aircrafters in an Industrial league contest last night.

Dale McKinley's scintillating mound performance, he allowed only two hits and struck out 14, was one of the best of the season. Harrington's lone tally came in the fourth inning.

Mansfield Tire took a forfeit decision from Tappan Stove in the other scheduled encounter.

Hirsch and All-Stars Upset Los Angeles

Grid Dancing Master Scores Twice; Annual Contest Draws 97,380.

By TOMMY DEVINE, UP Sports Writer.

CHICAGO—Football's hottest argument, the relative strength of the established National league and the new All-America conference flared anew today in the wake of the 13th annual All-Star game.

The college All-Stars defeated the world professional champion Los Angeles Rams 16 to 0 before a sellout throng of 97,380 fans at Soldier's Field last night and the two key figures in the triumph were youngsters who will make their pro debuts this fall with teams in the All-America conference.

Elroy Hirsch, the gridiron dancing master, who flashed on pre-war collegiate fields with the University of Wisconsin, gave a brilliant running exhibition as he scored both the All-Star touchdowns. And the star of the great All-Star line was Martin Ruby, former Texas A. and M. tackle.

* * *

Hirsch will play professional ball with the Chicago Rockets and Ruby has been signed by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

* * *

The brilliance of Hirsch and Ruby isn't likely to be matched often in the All-America ranks, but at least temporarily the new circuit can hold its own in any argument as to comparative strength. In addition to Hirsch and Ruby, 37 other members of the All-Star squad will play in the All-America this year. Sixteen members of the squad belong to National league teams.

Hirsch broke up the contest late in the first period when he raced 38 yards for a touchdown, the longest run from scrimmage in the 13-year history of this pre-season classic.

Again in the third period Hirsch gave the huge crowd a chance to roar, when he took a pass from Otto Graham of Northwestern. Graham tossed the ball 37 yards in the air and the Wisconsin ace took it on the dead run over his shoulder, shook off Jim Gillette, the denfending Ram halfback, and outran him to the goal line.

The All-Stars' final two points came on a safety in the final period when Paul Walker of Yale trapped Kenny Washington behind the goal line.

The victory was the All-Stars' fourth in the series. Two of those triumphs were gained by teams coached by Alvin N. (Bo) McMillin of Indiana. McMillin directed last night's winner and the victory in the 1938 game when Washington was beaten 28 to 16.

Feller Tries Again for 22

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Cleveland's Indians sent their ace flinger, Bobby Feller, to the mound against the Philadelphia Athletics today in an effort to snap a four-game losing streak.

With three straight losses, Feller was out to throw off his own jinx and boost his season wins to 22 games. Bob Savage, who has won two and lost 11 games this year, was selected to face him.

The Tribe's 1 to 0 facing by the Athletics last night was their 43rd one-run game of the season and the 22nd of this number they have lost.

Gene Desautels came through with the payoff blow in the ninth when he banged a single into right field with the bases filled and two out to score Pete Suder.

Up until the ninth, when the A's made three hits, Mel Harder had allowed only five blows and given one of his best performances of the season. His opponent, Johnny Flores, had the better of the duel, however, limiting Cleveland to a double and two singles.

The Tribe's only scoring opportunity came in the opening inning when Third Baseman Ken Keltner doubled and was advanced to third. He died there, however, when Hank Edwards struck out.

Ben Hogan Dons Favorites Mantle In National PGA

By LAWTON CARVER,
INS SPORTS EDITOR

PORTLAND, Ore. — The rooting followers of Ben Hogan had him firmly established today to win his first national professional golf championship, in spite of hail, high water and Jimmy Demaret.

The two Texans, Hogan from Fort Worth and Hershey, Pa., and Demaret from Houston with no other address, met in the feature semi-final match of 36 holes.

* * *

The crown was knocked off Byron Nelson's puzzled head by Porky Ed Oliver yesterday. The score was one up in a sizzling 36-hole quarter final.

* * *

That put Oliver, of Chicago, Wilmington, Del., and various other points, in the semis against Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who prefers to be known currently as a resident of Sanford, Me., although he actually is a brown-necked native of Rosedale, Kan.

Hogan yesterday advanced farther in the national pro merry-go-round than ever before when he won his quarter-final with Frank Moore, of Overland, Mo., 5 and 4

Demaret put out Jimmy Turnesa, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., like a busted lantern in a hurricane, 6 and 5.

In beating Nelson yesterday, Oliver was aided and abetted by Nelson himself. The failing champion was four down after the first 18 holes then managed to get two up once during the afternoon stretch of steadiness and an attack only to be sloughed out by Oliver's of his own wildness.

Big Buckshot Barrage Winds Up With Roarin' Grand Shoot

By DON STULL

VANDALIA, O. —(AP)— The world's biggest buckshot barrage winds up a record-breaking week here today with a trio of unknown marksmen shooting it out for trapshooting's most elusive title, the Roarin' Grand American Handicap championship.

The three finalists meeting in an extra shootoff session carried over after darkness halted the firing yesterday were John J. McHale, 33-year-old Canadian shoe manufacturer of London, Ont., J. L. Nicolai, 66, Denver, Colo., garage operator, and Frank J. Bennett, 35-year-old Eastern Airlines pilot and a veteran of World War II.

It was the first time in the grand's 47-year history that the event had to be carried over into a second day.

McHale, Nicolai and Bennett broke 98 of 100 targets to get into the shootoff race for first prize in the $10,000 grand. Each posted his winning score in yesterday's early morning round.

None of the finalists ever has won a major trapshooting event.

There were dozens of other shootoffs on today's program, for the grand offers 205 cash prizes ranging from $1,000 for first to $25 each for the last 90 guns in the money circle.

Three marksmen were deadlocked two targets off the leader's pace, nine more were tied with 95x100 scores and there was a host of 94s and other figures certain to figure in the cash.

The three with 96x100 tallies were John Feuerstein of Milan, O., C. G. Buckey of Pekin, Ill., and F. Oliver Barnes of Baltimore, Md.

The Roarin' Grand, which never has had a repeating champion, lived up to its reputation again this year as the defending titlist, Don Englebry of Vermilion, O., broke only 77 of 100 targets. He killed 99 of 100 from 23 yards to win in 1945 but he was back at the far away 25-yard line yesterday.

Springfield, the host team, dropped a 6 to 1 verdict to Lorain.

Four Games Set to Be Played In St. Louis

Both Clubs Win One-Run Tilts; Yankees Take Fifth Straight.

By LES CONKLIN, INS Sports Writer.

NEW YORK—Baseball America is on tenterhooks today awaiting the opening of the crucial four-game series between the Cardinals and Dodgers in St. Louis tomorrow.

Twenty-four hours before the series, which may well decide the winner of the National league pennant, the setting is perfect with the two rivals still tied and fighting tooth and nail all the way down the stretch.

But no matter how spectacular the series turns out to be, it will not be any more thrilling than the current battles between the Cards and the Phillies. For three consecutive games the Red Birds have been forced to exert themselves to the utmost to wrest one-run triumphs from Philadelphia.

The Phils, who have been fighting like Tigers ever since they were accused of being a "door-mat" a spell back, have added enormously to their growing popularity by their spirited play.

* * *

Both the Dodgers and the Cards were forced to go all the way to the ninth inning to win yesterday. In the afternoon, Brooklyn had assumed a temporary lead with a 2 to 1 triumph over Cincinnati, thanks to Kirby Higbe's pitching and a double by Stevens and Whitman's single in the ninth.

* * *

In the evening the Cards got right back on even terms with the Brooks again when Johnny Beazley, pre-war ace who has been a powerhouse for the Cards in recent weeks, won a 2-to-1 duel from Ralph Judd of the Phils. And another member of the old guard, Terry Moore, delivered a pinch single which won the game in the ninth.

Paul Erickson of the Chicago Cubs and Johnny Sain hooked up in an even more spectacular pitchers' battle, with Sain allowing only two hits and Erickson but three. In the seventh inning the Cubs bunched both their hits with two walks and an error to win 3 to 1.

Pittsburgh's Pirates trounced the New York Giants, 7 to 3, and are within one game of getting out of the league's cellar.

* * *

In the American league, the New York Yankees racked up their fifth straight victory by beating the St. Louis Browns again, 4 to 1. The Yanks advanced to within 12 games of the Boston Red Sox, whose game with the White Sox was washed out.

* * *

Dizzy Trout of Detroit blanked Washington, 5 to 0, in the second game of a twilight twin bill after the Senators had taken the opener, 3 to 2.

Mel Harder, Cleveland's grand old veteran, came up with a corking game but was unfortunate enough to run up against Jesse Flores of the Athletics, who held the Indians to three hits and blanked them 1 to 0. A single by Gene Desautels with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth broke up the game.

JANE ACCEPTS CUP FOR HER NO. 1 GUY

CHICAGO —(UP)— Movie Star Jane Russell last night accepted the Joe Carr Memorial trophy presented annually to the most valuable player of the National Football league in behalf of her husband, Bob Waterfield of the Los Angeles Rams.

Two Ohioans In Caddy Semis

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Two Ohioans held the fort today against a New Yorker and a Texan in the semi-finals of the national caddie golf tournament on the Ohio State university course.

Clarence (Chick) Hendrickson of Sandusky, O., met Ralph Holguin of San Antonio, Tex., in one match. In the other, Tom Nieporte of North College Hill, a Cincinnati suburb, played Al Vascovic of Binghamton, N. Y.

* * *

Hendrickson, who is 1946 Ohio high school champion, defeated Tom Little of Hamilton, O., yesterday, 3 and 2, posting a 75 in the process.

Holguin, the lad from the section that produced such noted ex-caddies as Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson and the Mangrum brothers, triumphed over George Allmon of Kansas City, 3 and 2.

Nieporte edged Tom Hanson of Wichita, Kans., 1 up. Hanson lost when he missed a two-foot putt on the 16th green.

Vascovic downed Norm Goeckel of Detroit, 6 and 5.

Jack Lait

On Broadway

By JACK LAIT

WHEN GAMBLING was rather free and easy in Chicago's First Ward, Mike McCool (long since departed from this world) was dealing stud in the Occidental Club.

The joint was crooked, the game was crooked and Mike was a cheating bottom-dealer, which he was hired to be.

It was a hectic, wearing occupation. Mike worked only three hours a day. For that he was paid $10. As the clock reached the third hour's end, the next dealer was at his back. Mike got up, his successor took his seat, reached into the $10 bin and handed him the topmost bill over his shoulder.

Mike would take his pay, turn into the room where the roulette tables operated, and lose the $10 he had made dealing crooked stud against a crooked wheel.

He was always broke and in debt. He was being crowded by loan sharks, hounded by his landlady. And so he made a high resolution — never again would he throw away his money bucking that rigged robber, against which he had no chance; he a professional himself a trained mechanic skinning suckers for the same thieving bosses, throwing his dough down the same sewer where he sent clucks' cash.

Those yokels didn't know any better. But he—Mike McCool—the house-swindler, who made his living shearing sheep for him to be perpetually in hock because he couldn't stay away from that gimmicked gadget— it was ridiculous. It was unbelievable. It was—all over. Yes, never again. He swore it.

All through his three hours of fleecing innocents next night, he mentally repeated his resolutions. He would stick by them. He wouldn't fall. He would take his 10 bucks and walk out. Mike McCool would be a man!

He finished his trick. He got up. He reached for his 10-spot. He started off. The wheel-room was some 40 feet along to the left, off the long corridor. As he passed it, he heard the croupier:

"Are you all down? Coming out . . . it's . . . 23 . . . and the black!"

"Doggone," whispered Mike to himself. "I always start playing the black. I would o' won."

"Are you all down? It's . . . 12 and the red."

"Wow! After the first black I always play the red. I would o' won twicet in a row," murmured Mike.

He felt his feet being drawn back—and to the left—and into that- But he had pledged himself.

Between him and the wheel-room was an old-fashioned, round stove. It was glowing, red hot. He got behind it, to shield him from himself, to interpose an obstacle between himself and temptation.

"Coming out—" called the croupier, in his singsong tone.

Mike felt wild horses dragging him. His manhood was slipping. He was moving. He was—he would—he must—he pulled himself back with a lurch.

In his hand, crumpled into a soggy ball, was his $10 bill.

With sudden inspiration he raised his foot and kicked open the door of the stove. Into its roaring belly he threw his x-note. Then he kicked the door shut with a clang.

"There's 10 bucks those crooks won't get!" he hoarsed as he started down the hall, to the stairs, and out.

I can reveal a closely kept secret. Howard Hughes' hideaway, since he left the hospital, has been sought by many reporters, without success. Well —Barney Glaser, the producer, has a swank house on the outskirts of Beverly Hills, which his estranged wife was occupying. Barney fixed her up elsewhere and leased the place to Hughes for a year.

* * *

When I covered the execution of a pitiful little youngster known as "Two-Gun" Crowley, in Sing Sing, I reported for International News Service that he entered the death-chamber "so full of hop, he couldn't find the floor with his feet."

A meticulous and thorough editor in Wilmington, Del., who took our service, and who led his paper with my report, noticed that the Associated Press reporter made no mention of such a condition. Very properly, he checked. He wired Lewis E. Lawes, then the famous warden Up the River.

Officials never admit that doomed men are given, in their food, slowly, for days, in small quantities, a tasteless, invisible drug that dulls their senses. That is why, if you have a slight headache or hear some disturbing news, your appetite wanes; but a man who knows he must die soon, at a set hour, has a voracious desire to eat—even his last meal because with his food he gets the palliative that dilutes his grief and fear. But it is not considered "Christian" to send a soul winging to its Maker from a body saturated with dope, though it is prescribed by a prison physician, to soothe the subject's nerves. So wardens hush the matter.

Lawes telegraphed the editor, saying he saw no evidence of doping. The editor wired me, asking an explanation. I telegraphed him the symptoms I had noted and my basis of long experience with the ways of penal institutions. (I am the author of "The Big House" and hundreds of stories on convict life.) Then I ended with this statement:

"Moreover, I was there. Warden Lawes was not!"

Lawes sat the execution out in his quarters. I was 15 feet from the electric chair.

All this is preliminary to a note meant for a nice young man who publicly says I was wrong in stating there was no gambling this year in Saratoga—because, he proclaims a well-known gossip-name lost $55,000 there. First, I don't believe it. A press agent tried to put that one over on me, too. Second, I was there, and my friend Ed wasn't. I saw where the games were running. And I said they were—in the outskirts of the Spa, not within the town limits. If any $55,000 was lost, I could probably name the place, out in the country.

* * *

In no Saratoga season has there been so much news flagrantly faked and sent out from there. Front-page items and photographs were deliberately cooked up. This desk has been flooded with phony fairy tales from there. I not only flew up, myself, but had a staff reporter assigned there to keep me informed and to run down irresponsible inventions, planted to get certain places and individuals into print . . . If anyone seriously challenges those assertions, I'll blow the top off the whole job.

(For Hal Boyle)

TRIESTE —(P)— The incredible thing about Trieste is that it could ever be violent.

Lazy, somnolent in the moist heat of the August sun, the city seems as likely to flare into riot and bloodshed as the flat, milky green Adriatic at its front door is likely to boil with tempestuous storm.

* * *

A picture book city mixing the ancient and the modern, the exotic and the commonplace in savory blend, Trieste rolls down from low stony hills to the great bay with such langorous grace that the thought of turbulence becomes almost untenable.

* * *

Trieste is — or seems to be — the antithesis of turmoil.

The Triestini — a herterogeneous, distinctive breed evolved through centuries of changing sovereignty, of playing host to the oppressed, of the flux of peoples common to all great seaports— appear to be cheerful, urbane, cosmopolitan and temperamentally apt to look down their noses at the hubbub of civic strife.

They look like people who would rather discuss the fine points of a good meal with a gourmet's knowledge than to argue the fine shadings of ideological differences. You see them spread along the seawall of their waterfront drive [illegible] for the most part, wearing the Adriatic's scantiest bathing suits sunbaked to the color of the golden brown [illegible] restaurant's feature. They are [illegible] to the [illegible].

You see them in gay [illegible] about open air cafe tables in animated conversation over coffee or vermouth or Trieste's good foamy beer, or bending to the good food that their public eating places serve with the devotion that good food demands.

You see them milling in holiday good humor in the great bowl of the Castello Di San Giusto atop the city where open air opera is presented, applauding lustily after each favorite aria and in the intermissions visiting back and forth like American housewives at a church social.

You hear them as they stroll singly and in groups along the broad Riva Del Mandracchio before the Piazza Dell Unita in the city's heart, break into light hearted song — something rarely heard these days in Italian cities harder hit by war.

* * *

And one who, like this correspondent, has yet to see it, finds it incredible that pro-Italian and pro-Yugoslav factions are at each other's throats in sporadic outbreaks of violence because the two nations—and the world's major powers—are quarreling over its ultimate destiny.

* * *

It all lends some guise of verity to the frequent comment of allied military government officers here that spontaneous demonstrations and concommitant riots are by no means as spontaneous as interested parties would have it believed.

BURGLARY, CAR THEFT SOLVED BY CONFESSION

OSR Escaper Admits Breaking Into Cottage and Taking Ashlander's Auto.

An Ashland burglary and car theft were solved yesterday by the confession of two Ohio State Reformatory inmates who were returned to OSR following their capture near Bexley, earlier in the week. They had been at liberty since Aug. 16.

The customary two years additional time will be added to the terms of the pair, a reformatory spokesman said today. They are: Robert Tennant, 22, of Newcastle, Pa., who was sentenced from Richland county Oct. 8, 1945 for a term of one to 20 years for auto stealing, and Robert Wood, 26, who received a similar term for a similar offense in Franklin county. He was sentenced Sept 20, 1945.

After escaping from the reformatory Friday, the couple hid in a woods near Savannah until Sunday, they revealed.

Sunday night, they said, they broke into the Spring Lake cottage of Hoy Miller, of Ashland, where they stole clothing and food.

Later, according to the confession, they took a car belonging to Jay Houser, Ashland R. D. 5. The car was found abandoned near Utica.

GIRL, 5, STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Two Other Persons Injured in Traffic, Industrial Mishaps in Mansfield Area.

Three persons, including a five-year-old Mansfield girl, were injured in auto and industrial accidents in and near the city yesterday and early today.

In another accident a low-hanging tree branch caused a heavy truck to smash into and up-root another tree on Arthur avenue.

Leona Golden, 5, of 146 North Franklin avenue, suffered lacerations of the left leg and shock when she was struck by a car about 8:30 a. m. today at North Diamond and East Fourth streets.

Driver of the car, Bert A. Shafer, 44, of 20 Burnese avenue, said the girl ran from behind another car and into the path of his auto. Officers said the girl crossed the street against a red light. She was treated at General hospital and released.

Earl Moore, 48, Mansfield, R. D. 5, suffered an injured left thumb when he caught it in a punch press at the Westinghouse Electric corporation plant yesterday afternoon. He was treated at General hospital and released.

Cars Collide.

Jack Adams, 43, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., received a sprained ankle when the car he was driving collided with one driven by Ervin Layman, of Gomer, O., early today on U. S. Route 30, near State Route 314, west of Mansfield.

Adams was charged with unsafe operation of a motor vehicle today in municipal court. He pleaded innocent and was fined $20 and costs. Adams' injuries were treated at General hospital.

Meanwhile, officers reported that a one and one-half ton truck, driven by Verne W. Miller, 24, of Sixth avenue, struck and up-rooted a tree on Arthur avenue last night.

Miller said that the top of the truck was caught by a low-hanging branch of another tree, causing him to swerve off the street. The impact forced the tree against the front porch of the home of Walter C. Lorentz, 127 Arthur avenue, police said. No one was injured.

Push Search for War Veteran, Missing From Home for 5 Days

ASHLAND — After a four-day search by the Ashland county sheriff's department and Ashland police for James Cocklin, jr., 36, Savannah, missing from his home since Monday, the two departments today enlisted the aid of state authorities in a hunt for the merchant marine veteran whose family fears he has met with foul play.

JAMES COCKLIN, JR.

Married and the father of two children, the Savannah man left his home Monday morning to hitch-hike to Ashland to see Lee Ellington, 416 West Tenth street, with whom he planned to go into partnership in the garage business here. Relatives told authorities the two expected to go to Mansfield Monday to buy an air compresser, jack and other tools for their new business. The Savannah man failed to arrive at the Ellington residence, the latter stated.

Sheriff's deputies are checking on a report that Cocklin was last seen getting into a car in which he may have obtained a ride. Relatives state he had about $100 on him when he disappeared and because of this they fear he may have been robbed and abducted or harmed. All roads of the county have been searched in case Cocklin might have been thrown from a car. Relatives believe he may be the victim of amnesia from a possible blow on the head.

His wife, Ruth, said he has not been despondent nor indicated any reason why he would leave home. He is described as five feet, nine inches tall, and weighing 150 pounds. He was wearing a brown suit and no hat when he left home. The name "Jim" is tatooed on his left arm, relatives told authorities. He returned from service a year ago.

ABANDON CAR

Wakeman Bank Robbers Flee Auto at Farm Near Kipton.

ELYRIA —(UP)— A 1946 blue Chevrolet sedan identified as the car used by two men who robbed the Wakeman bank Thursday was in the county sheriff's garage today after it was found on a farm near Kipton, O., only a few miles from Wakeman.

The car was found between a granary and cattle barns on a farm just out of sight from the highway, Deputy Sheriff Joseph J. Gusik reported. The farm owner, who lives alone, was at the Lorain county fair all day Thursday and again yesterday.

Agents for the Federal Bureau of Investigation came from Cleveland to examine the car.

Burlesque Before, Religion to Come

CANTON —(AP)— The old Grand theater, where burlesque queens used to tantalize their audiences, is going to become a church. Rev. Niels P. Thomsen of Canton's Bethel Tabernacle said today the church would complete soon a transaction acquiring the 50-year-old theater from Robert E. Heck, former city auditor, for $50,000.

RETURN TUESDAY TO END SESSION

Legislature Approves $6,000,000 Vet Housing Plan, Pension Boost.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Members of the Ohio legislature were back home today after winding up the business of their fourth special session in a four-day meeting.

They will return Tuesday for a brief session to permit presiding officers to sign the bills in Gov. Lausche's emergency program, then adjourn finally.

The legislature appropriated $6,000,000 which will be distributed among county commissioners for a veterans' housing program, and increased the maximum monthly award for old age pensioners and the blind from $40 to $50. It also provided $200 a year for medical care for the aged and blind.

Lausche's recommendation for establishment of a state employes' salary survey commission got snarled in the house, after being passed by the senate, and died.

Other actions:

Authorized counties to use additional federal funds for aid to dependent children;

Provided $15,665 for a statewide hospital survey to qualify for federal funds to aid hospital improvements;

Eased restrictions for licensing World War II physicians and surgeons, and Authorized the highway department to maintain the Pomeroy-Mason bridge over the Ohio river after it becomes toll-free in a few weeks.

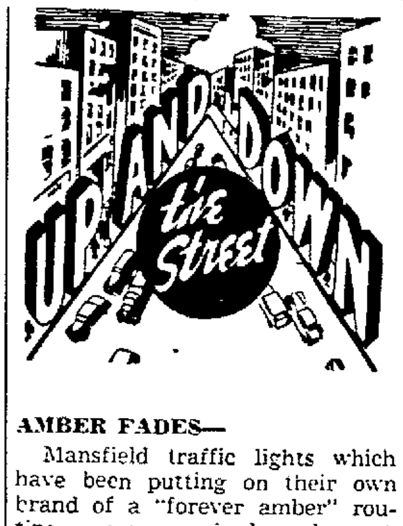
OK Fitchville School Allocation

NEW LONDON— A school and auditorium in Fitchville, Huron county, were among public works projects in Ohio for which more than $51,000 in government funds were approved yesterday in Washington.

More than $2,500 was advanced on the $60,000 Fitchville school. The $51,000 was approved by the Federal Works agency as an advance loan on the construction projects.



UP AND DOWN the Street

AMBER FADES—

Mansfield traffic lights which have been putting on their own brand of a "forever amber" routine were repaired today. A faulty relay caused it all, according to City Electrician Ernest Adams. Numerous lights in the city were remaining on the amber signal far beyond the normal time limit, Adams said. Motorists—especially those who try to "go through the yellow"—were being confused and delayed. Their patience also was being taxed. But the relay at the master control box has been repaired and the lights are now only "occasionally amber."

JUST A JOKE—

Harry Dederick, 159 North Mulberry street, made a hurried call to police headquarters in the wee hours of today. "There's a stick-up in progress at the Morton hotel," he informed police. "Two men in white coats have their arms up in the air and it looks as if a man in a checkered coat is 'frisking' them," he continued. Police dispatched a cruiser to the North Main street hotel. Employes there insisted, however, that there was no "stick-up." Police left, still not sure whether there was a hold-up or not. One officer speculated, however: "Apparently one of the employes was telling a joke and was waving his arms around in the air. That's all we can find out about the 'stick-up,'" he said.

GRAND CHAMPION—

A Richland county bred and raised Berkshire boar was back on his home farm in Troy, township today as the grand champion boar of the Ohio State Berkshire show at London. The two-year-old animal is owned by C. A. Hampton, orchardist and breeder of purebred hogs. The new grand champion, "Hampton's Baron Minute Man," was reserve champion at the Ohio State Berkshire show last year at Wooster. The show this year was held at the Madison county fair.

'STREAMLINING' PLAN PROPOSED FOR PARIS MEET

U. S. Secretary Seeks to Avoid Charge of 'Dictation' By Big Powers.

PARIS — (INS) — Secretary of State James F. Byrnes met privately today with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin to discuss a British proposal that the Big Four hold a concurrent parley in an effort to speed deliberations of the peace conference.

Byrnes at first objected to what seemed might develop into "dictation" by the big powers, but after a talk of an hour and 20 minutes, during which Bevin insisted something urgent must be done to prevent the conference from dragging on for months, Byrnes veered toward acceptance of a "streamlining" method.

Debate Useless.

It was understood that Bevin stressed the fact that it is useless for conference commissions to debate day after day on amendments which the Big Four in the final analysis will not approve. He said it was far better to get their stamp of approval in advance.

Barkley, Vandenberg Leave To Aid Byrnes

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The state department announced today that Senate Majority Leader Barkley (D. Ky.) will accompany Sen. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) to Paris where the latter will act as adviser to Secretary of State Byrnes at the peace conference.

Under the proposed new plan, the Big Four would instruct a representative sitting on each commission on what amendments have the support of the council of foreign ministers. Thus the commission would be advised of the likelihood of acceptance by the plenary conference and by the council in the final drafting.

'Red Pencil' Urged

Bevin proposed that the council of foreign ministers take up the flood of 250 amendments submitted by various nations to the treaty drafts.

He suggested that the Big Four "red-pencil" the amendments it would reject and "blue-pencil" those it would favor.

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, WCTU president, protested Shirley's first movie drink as "a disservice to American youth."

The studio told Mrs. Colvin by telephone that the scene is good dry propaganda because Shirley takes only one sip and then spits it out with disgust.
